MONTREAL, FRIDAY, JANUARY 26, 1923

OUR RESPONSIBILITY

The events of the first month of the new year go far to show that 1923 will not bring back this stricken world to normal conditions. Critical international situations develop overnight, and we live from day to day not knowing when we will again be involved in a great conflict. Britain's stand in the Near East last autumn narrowly averted a war which might have assumed universal proportions, and the Turkish question remains unsolved with the sinister prospect of hostilities ever looming before us.

The occupation of the Ruhr aggravates Franco-German racial antagonism, and reliable students of European politics tell us that the seeds of another war are being sown. The instruments of warfare have been "improved upon" since 1918, and new and more deadly ones invented so that the horrors of the next conflict would be beyond comprehension. Glorifying in our marvellous age of progress, our age of machinery, we are the victims of our own inventions. Are we on the road to ultimate extinction? Russia, or "what was Russia," as a prominent McGill professor calls the wrecked empire, is crippled socially and economically for generations, while the countries of central Europe, notably Germany and Austria, are in a deplorable condition. Italy recently experienced an unusual, and bloodless revolution, and the too numerous buffer states of Europe are uncertain frontiers.

In the midst of this welter of discord and unrest, Great Britain, heavy-laden with weighty internal problems, is, in spite of grave difficulties, recovering her commercial strength, and whose courage, wisdom and power are the greatest factors maintaining peace today.

Few people realise that the England of 1800, now the Motherland of the British Commonwealth of Nations, had but 8,800,000 people, approximately the equivalent of Canada's population in 1923, yet she was the bulwark against Napoleon. The Dominion has not yet produced a William Pitt, an Arthur Wellesley, a Horatio Nelson, or an Adam Smith, although in a decade, providing that lethargy or war do not impede our development, Canada will have to bear a large share of the responsibility for the welfare of the world. We have made wonderful strides commercially, but much of our development has been due to unlimited resources and a few pioneers of determination and vision. The future of this great Dominion, the future of the Empire, and the future welfare of the world, continuously beset by dark forces, rest with the intelligent young men and young women of the land, who come largely from our universities, from our own McGill. To become great thinkers, and statesmen, we, the youth of Canada, should be imbued with that spirit of sacrifice and high ideals shown in the war, and those strong British traditions which are our heritage.

THE TWO UNIVERSITIES OF MONTREAL

It is a significant fact, and one that augurs well for the future, that a step has at last been taken in securing at least a measure of co-operation between the students of the two great universities of Montreal—McGill and l'Université de Montréal. An invitation which was tendered to the students of the French university to attend the discussion groups and open forums which are being organized at Strathcona Hall for the study of industrial, national and international questions has been received with a welcome almost unexpected in its warmth, and as a result two of the groups are to be under the joint leadership of two professors, one from each of the universities; while at the first meeting which was held last night a representative group—including "le président de l'Association Générale des Étudiants" and "le rédacteur en chef" of the students' journal—came up from the downtown college and co-operated heartily with their confreres of McGill.

The good effects of the recent National Student Conference at Toronto are not showing themselves more clearly and more practically from the point of view of the students of McGill than in this first move towards a fuller co-operation with the French collegians. The desire which we have for closer contact with the students of the University of Montreal is reciprocated in no uncertain manner. The reception which was accorded to the McGill undergraduates who approached the students' council of U. of M., the opinion upon this subject expressed to us by the president of the council, and the presence of the French representatives last night—all these bear testimony to the willingness of the students of the French-Canadian college to work with us on terms of fraternity and good will, while their entrance into the Intercollegiate Hockey League is indicative of a fuller friendship to be won in the realm of sport. In work and play, then, let us say to the other University of Montreal—"Bienvenue."

FAMOUS SURGEONS TO VISIT IN JUNE

Will Receive Honorary Degrees at Convocation

The coming medical convocation on June 11 will be honoured with the presence of four distinguished surgeons, three British and one American, to receive honorary degrees which McGill awarded them last year. They are Sir William Taylor, Sir Berkley Moynihan, Sir Robert Jones, the eminent British surgeons, and Dr. W. J. Mayo, the famous American surgeon and one of the Mayo brothers of clinic fame.

All four have signified their intention of being present to receive the honor which was awarded last year. Sir William Taylor rendered during the war advancement of surgical science and contributions to surgical literature. Sir Berkley Moynihan is honored in virtue of his eminent position as a professor and teacher of surgery, his contributions to surgical literature and his valuable work during the war as chairman of the Medical Advisory Board. Sir Robert Jones, K.B.E., C.B., F.R.C.S., receives recognition as the foremost orthopaedic surgeon in the British Empire, for his work during the war as member of the Consultative Council, and for his notable contributions to surgical literature, particularly military orthopaedic surgery. Dr. W. J. Mayo is honored for his contributions in the field of medicine.

OPINION OF CONFERENCE BY DELEGATES

tions—comprising the Industrial, Rural French, and Anglo-Saxon and New Canadian problems.

Wells said that in these questions the student opinion had been inclined to go to extremes. "In Canada we place property before personality, instead of vice versa," as Prof. MacIver said. It is necessary to take a middle course in thought, about these questions.

He hoped that the presence of the French students at this meeting would help to bring about better co-operation of the two races in the future.

Wells was followed by Dérôme, of the Université de Montréal, president of l'Association Generale des Etudiants, who said that he was greatly pleased to have accepted the invitation of McGill.

He hoped that the relation in athletics, etc., of the two Montreal universities would be for their mutual benefit.

Klineberg was in the chair, and extended a cordial welcome to the guests. He said that he hoped that people, if they had not done so before, would now understand just what had happened at the conference, and what concrete applications to the mode of living would be followed out as a result.

There will be a verbatim report of the convention published at a price of 75c if the demand for such a report warrants printing it.

The meeting adjourned to organize the groups which will continue the study of questions discussed at the conference.

The following are the groups:

Canadian Nationalism and Internationalism.—Profs. Déry and Du Roure.
Science and Religion.—Prof. McKay.

COACH WILL GIVE TALKS ABOUT RUGBY

Series of Lectures on Autumn Pastime

OPEN TO MANY

All Rugby Players Invited to Attend

A new departure in Rugby circles at McGill will be instituted within the next few weeks if present plans take effect. At the meeting of the Rugby team yesterday afternoon, Coach Shaughnessy made the suggestion that a month's course of lectures in the technicalities of rugby be commenced in the near future for the benefit not only of members of the Senior team, but every Rugby player in the university. The coach waxed very enthusiastic over the scheme, and it met with the unanimous approval of the members of the team.

The benefits of such a course of lectures are very obvious. In the past, when the Rugby season has commenced, long hours have been spent explaining the technicalities of the game to the members of the team. With the institution of this pre-season course of instruction, many of the worries of the coach, as well as the players will be removed. The season can be commenced with a squad of players well versed in the finer points of the rules and tactics of Canadian Rugby under the present code. Much of the time previously devoted to this can be given to the perfection of signal practice and actual play.

No better manifestation of the spirit that pervades the 1923 Rugby team could be shown than its instant approval of the commencement of such a course. The players realize, as no one else can, the benefit such a series of talks by Coach Shaughnessy can be to them. Difficulties in the interpretation of the rules and unusual situations in the game will be gone into with a thoroughness that can leave no doubt in the minds of the eager students.

The course will consist of two hours per week, held between the hours of five and six on days to be announced later. It is a wonderful opportunity for anyone who wishes to learn Rugby as only Coach Shaughnessy can teach it. Not only is it a remarkable opportunity but a duty of every one who has ever donned or ever intends to don a Rugby uniform at McGill, to attend this series of talks. Members of class, faculty and university teams are especially asked to do their bit towards making this year's Rugby season a success and gladden the heart of the coach by attending these lectures note-book under arm, and with the earnest desire to learn everything that can be known about the "man's game."

EPSILON PHI WIN GAME VS. ZETA PSI

Fast Hockey Displayed But Lacked Combination

The Epsilon Hockey team won an easy victory over the Zeta Psi in a match played on the Campus Rink last night by the score of 4-1. Several scrambles for the puck occurred during the game, which provided excitement for the spectators.

Both teams lacked combination and the play took the form of individual rushes. The winners held the lead throughout and there was never a doubt as to the outcome. Hyman and Burland played well for the victors the former rushing the puck up the ice time and again and succeeding in scoring three of their four goals. Burland did some very effective checking and played a steady game. Shots were tried at both goals, with no success. Finally "Jeff" Hamilton succeeded in scoring the only goal gained by the Zeta Psi. Soon afterwards Hyman succeeded in slipping one by for his team. At this point both teams were at their height and the play was fast and took on a more regular form. "Art" James then succeeded in breaking away and put one in for the Epsilon Phi. The whistle blew for half time soon afterwards. Many substitutes were put on by both teams at half-time, thus keeping the players fresh and eager. The second half opened with a burst of speed, and rather wild hockey. Although the puck was chased from one end to the other the Epsilon Phi succeeded in keeping their opponents' score at one goal, and in putting in two more for themselves. Hyman scored both of these by making his way right through the other team, winding up by a clever shot which was sufficient to get by. A large crowd of supporters for both team was present, and kept up a peppy chorus of yells from start to finish.

"It's the last car on a train that always gets smashed."

"Well, why don't the railroad companies leave the last car off?"

"Is he very rich?"

"He has a cool million."

"Thasso? How did he make it?"

"He owns an ice plant."

TORONTO VS. MCGILL IN BASKETBALL

First Intercollegiate Game Here This Saturday

The basketball club has almost completed its plans for the inter-collegiate game with Toronto on Saturday. The High School Gymnasium is to be used, the game starting in all probability at 2.30. Every effort is being made to handle the crowd that is expected. It is rumored that Miss America and Miss Mount Royal have been invited to open the game but no confirmation of this has been secured as yet.

The detailed report of the Toronto-Queen's game shows that the Blue and White forwards are working well together. McLean scored six baskets during the game and seems to have been the outstanding player in the Varsity squad. Bell, the star pivot man, is as steady as ever, scoring nine out of twelve free throws and placing the ball into the basket from the floor on two occasions. Duffill also was able to get up the floor from the defence, and add four points to the score. Fraser, another forward, also caged three baskets.

For the tri-coloured team, Jones and Hannon were the high scorers. Jones, however, was shooting the foul shots, so that Hannon, with three baskets, leads the Queen's score from the floor. This defence player stood out well and should be a big asset for the Kingston team when the Red and White team meet them next week.

The McGill team which will line up is not, as yet, selected. It is quite evident, however, that all the men will be on the floor as in most cases the spares are as good as the regulars.

Toronto will, without doubt, line up the same team that defeated Queen's. The contest should be the closest in some time and the winner of the title should be the winner of this game.

Seats will be reserved in the gallery until 2.30 for girls from R.V.C. and members of the staff and their wives. After this hour no seats can be reserved. A preliminary game between Intermediate A and B will commence at 2 o'clock. This is certain to be a thrilling curtain-raiser.

DENTS TEAM DEFAULTS HOCKEY TO ARTS '23

Arts '23 won the scheduled hockey match with the combined team of Dents, '23 and Dents, '24 that was to have taken place on the Campus Rink yesterday afternoon, by default. Arts '23 had a full team on hand and when their opponents failed to appear they indulged in a snappy half hour of practice. This is the second game that Dents, has lost in this manner, their non-appearance being due this time to a misunderstanding of the schedule.

ARTS '23 PRESIDENT AT TORONTO DANCE

G. B. Puddicombe, president of Arts '23, has left for Toronto, where he will represent the Faculty of Arts at the University College Dance at Hart House this evening. The dance is one of the most brilliant social events of the season at Varsity.

HOCKEY TEAM AWAY TO BATTLE QUEENS

Return Match in Kingston This Week-end

The McGill hockey team leaves this morning for Kingston, where they will oppose the Queen's University six tonight, in the second match of the season between these two institutions. The contest is a very crucial one for both teams; if the Red and White is victorious, the tri-colour's chances for the Intercollegiate crown will be given a severe jolt, while if Queen's succeeds in making it two straight over the Montrealers, McGill's championship prospects will not be very bright. The two teams are at present tied for second place in the league standing with a victory and a defeat for each. Varsity leads with two wins over Queens and U. of M. in overtime battles; while the French University trails, having suffered defeats at the hands of both McGill and Toronto.

The McGill line-up will be: Morris, Dempsey and McGerrigle; McNaughton, Morrison and Flanagan; subs, Lynch.

NOTED ASTRONOMER SPEAKS TONIGHT

Before the Astronomical Society tonight at 8 o'clock in the Physics building Prof. C. A. Chant of Varsity, a well known Canadian astronomer, will speak of the Eclipse Expedition, of which he was a charge, to Walla, on the north-west coast of Australia. This site was selected as it gave a long duration of totality and furnished a high degree of probability for a clear sky on the date of the eclipse, September 21. Furthermore, the Australian navy took charge of transporting the expedition. Several other parties took advantage of the kindness of the Government, among whom was the Crocker Expedition of the great Lick Observatory of California. The program was very successfully carried through, though under arduous circumstances, and information is expected that will throw new light on certain theories, notably that of Einstein. Professor Chant in his interesting way will tell the story of the entire trip which may prove an eventful one. Students welcome.

HOWLERS

The following "howlers" were written by senior fourth pupils in Toronto:
1.—James I. had Walter Raleigh de-headed.
2.—Martin Luther was captain of the fleet in Elizabeth's reign, when England was at war with Spain.

"ULTRA-MODERN" EDUCATION.

The college student of to-day is the subject, even the butt of verbal thrusts springing from widely different walks of life, possessing various ideals. With his life habits the centre of an ever increasing shower of accusations and protests the student cannot but wonder what violent change has come over the offspring of man in the last generation that that offspring should exhibit traits never dreamed of in his parents, like the bewilderment of the chicken that has hatched out ducklings and finds that although they resemble in many ways what she had every right to expect, nevertheless their desire to risk extinction on water is uncanny and their inability to scratch for food surprisingly negligible. The college student cannot but ask himself, "Am I different?" and if so, wonder how the change came about. The answer is that the student of to-day is not different, but living in a different age.

Many of the mature people who criticize the college student of to-day never attended college. Denied the advantage in their youth they are wont to magnify the beauties of an Eden whose riches they have been prohibited. And those who have attended college look back upon their college days as representing an opportunity for the sowing of the seeds of ability to gain life's desire, to be reaped at maturity. And such should a college education be to a man; but the things that are creative of ability, that are educative, seem to be overlooked by those who criticize the "ultra-modern" tendencies of college students. The habit of concentrated book effort is not everything in education. Anything that makes for the advancement of civilization may be said to be educative.

Education if it is to mean anything in the future of a man must be anticipatory; the tendencies of youth are the realities of maturity, his whims the

R.V.C. AND Y.W.C.A. BASKETBALL GAME

First Game in Convocation Hall Saturday

On Saturday afternoon the R.V.C. and the Y.W.C.A. will meet in a basketball match. There will be two games: first, between the R.V.C. and Y.W.C.A. Senior teams, and second, between the Junior teams.

The match will take place in the Convocation Hall at R.V.C. at three o'clock. Permission has been granted to use the Hall for the Intercollegiate games which take place in February. In the meantime the hall is being prepared, and Saturday's game will take place there. The R.V.C. teams held a practice on Wednesday night, and will have a short one on Friday night to get into trim for the following day. Since the Y.W.C.A. have, no doubt, also been working off the effects of the Christmas vacation, good play should be in evidence.

This game will be R.V.C.'s second match. Just before the holidays two teams went out to Macdonald, which resulted in a victory for Macdonald in the game between the Senior teams, while the Junior game ended in a tie. The line-up has not been posted as yet, but will without doubt contain such well-known names as Miss Spier, Miss Leggat, Miss Slack and Miss Russell, so that the first game played in the Convocation Hall at R.V.C. should be of great interest to everyone interested in athletics, especially in R.V.C. athletics.

barometer of what may be expected when he constitutes the future. That is just what "ultra-modern" education is, the fore runner of an "ultra-modern" age. The plodding student of an idealistic past will find that his too close application to the ideal college education of that past avails him an inadequate preparation for the changed era of the future. Practicality is the keynote of modern educational tendency; a dissatisfaction with the past and much of the present, a spirited spontaneous revolt in an attempt to shake off the apathy and indifference of the past, an unrest from pent-up energy which will find its expression in great endeavors in the future.—Michigan Daily.

students use the swimming tank of the K. of C. situated close by.

M. Bruchesi, editor-in-chief of "Le Quartier Latin", is a nephew of His Grace Archbishop Bruchesi. He said that the first Laval weekly, "L'Escholar", first saw light fifteen years ago, and was followed by "L'Etudiant". These publications were in no way official organs of the student body, being solely the work of groups of men. Five years ago, "Le Quartier Latin", "Organe de l'Association Générale des Etudiants de l'Université de Montréal", was established, and has since that day well-justified its existence by the excellence of the material published each week.

"Le Quartier Latin", numbering eight pages, is published each Thursday at noon, and contains news of the many student activities, although a literary flavour is present throughout which is evident in the poems of merit and articles on religion, politics, the drama, etc. The circulation is 2,000, the paper being sent to the French colleges affiliated with the university, as well as to other educational institutions throughout Canada. The editorial office is situated in the university building on St. Denis street, and the staff meetings are held in the Students' House. "Le Quartier Latin" is headed by M. Hubert Trudelle, directeur; M. Gaston Caisse, administrateur (manager), and M. Jean Bruchesi, rédacteur-en-chef. The manager presides over the business and advertising staff, and the editor-in-chief over the editorial staff.

M. Boucher evinced much interest in the two French societies at McGill, "Le Cercle Français" and "La Société Française", and said that many students of his university had expressed a desire to meet the members of these societies. He hoped that relations would be established in the near future. M. Boucher asserted that his fellow-students, with very few exceptions, spoke English, and read the English journals each day. He hoped that students of McGill were equally proficient in the knowledge of French. M. Boucher was editor-in-chief of "Le Quartier Latin" in 1921, and director last year.

L'Université de Montréal contains the Faculties of Theology, Law, Medicine, Philosophy, Letters, Pure Science and Dentistry, and the Schools of Pharmacy, Veterinary Surgery, Applied Science, Commerce and Political and Social Science. An Arts course lasting four years, giving the degrees Bachelor of Letters and Bachelor of Science, taken at one of the colleges in the Montreal district, is preliminary to the degrees of the faculties and schools. In regard to Law and Medicine, "brevet" examinations may qualify the candidate for entrance without pursuing the four-year Arts course at the affiliated colleges.

DAILY FILES

JANUARY 26, 1914—

DARTMOUTH FRATERNITY RUSHING

The fraternity rushing season at Dartmouth is just approaching. Heretofore it has been customary for the fraternities to call back at this crucial time enthusiastic and experienced alumni who, by their silver-tongued oratory, endeavor to influence Freshmen for their Greek letter organization. The Interfraternity Council unexpectedly voted unanimously against this practice and "The Dartmouth" comments upon it as follows: "Five months provides an adequate period in which a Freshman of ordinary intelligence can decide for himself just what he wants to find in a fraternity and what fraternity will be best suited to his needs. He wants not only to be happy from the point of view of congeniality; he wants also the satisfaction and happiness that come from association with men who will make it a point to see that he gets as much as he possibly can out of college. The modern Freshman is a sophisticated animal; he is often older than he looks."

There is food for thought in this. The evils of early rushing are evident but in most colleges it seems to be a choice of evils. At Vermont such action has been discussed frequently. But the present existing conditions informally among fraternity men are not suitable for such a system here. Vermont, in the first place, is not a rich man's college. First year men proverbially have difficulty with their "mid-years" at all institutions of strict scholastic rating. These men on the average at Vermont are unable to afford the luxury of tutors. The dormitory system is limited and many Freshmen are thrown out in the city, where they may or may not be fortunate to run across an upper-classman who can help them. The fraternities fill a great need here. Many first year men of sterling ability owe their scholastic success to their fraternity. It means something to the fraternity to have the Freshmen remain in college and he will receive all the help he is willing to assimilate if he is a fraternity man.

There is another factor, which, though not pleasant, enters in. Although the Greek letter organizations may start out with the best of intentions, if there is a delay of five months before the matter of fraternity membership may be broached, there will be surreptitious work and many of the broad-minded and impartial yearlings will be secretly pledged long before the day the bids are given out. With the best of intentions, understandings would exist. Theoretically it is a fraternity-rushing panacea; practically it would prove a failure here and doubtless doesn't produce the Utopian conditions which are accredited to it at institutions where it is actually in use. —Vermont.

OUTING CLUB

The Outing Club of Middlebury has received the promise of $300 with which to build a ski jump. One hundred dollars is offered by the college, $100 by the Athletic Association and $100 by the Middlebury Board of Trade. Perhaps the Burlington Board of Trade, or Chamber of Commerce, might profit by this example. —Vermont.

AVERAGE GIRL

That women are not quite ready for intercollegiate athletics is the opinion of the instructor of physical education in the "University Daily Kansan." "The average girl in the university could not stand the nervous strain the athlete is obliged to undergo. The time is not very far off when women's athletics will be instituted in many universities, the same as the men's but

UP TO THE STUDENT

Many promising young men and women have been ruined by college. They have left the academic halls mentally helpless. Entering with ambitions clearly outlined, they have gone out mere products of a machine. The trouble is that the American colleges are producing parrots instead of individuals.

Only a sage can place the fault upon either the faculty or the student, but the fact remains that many of the young people in colleges today are losing their personalities in the welter of classroom instruction. They absorb everything; they believe everything. They seldom question. Individuality

THINGS TO WORRY OVER BY PSYCHE

A persistent rumour has it that the Medical Faculty has appointed a representative to the Winter Carnival Beauty Contest, under the name of "Miss Bacteriology."

For this contest there has been named a "Miss Bramson's." In the interest of "fame" competition we feel that a "Miss Kennedy's" should also be entered.

And speaking of "Miss Bramson's" we feel inclined to "meter" half way.

Tourists from one of the countries below the border are rushing to vote for Miss I. M'Tank, the Liquor Commission entry.

Those in charge of the Montreal Toggan Club have been repeatedly criticized. It is common knowledge that they have been letting things slide.

The chief point of difference in the Winter Sports in vogue at the Mount Royal Hotel as compared with the mountain of the same name, is that whereas in the one case the object is to get things down quickly, in the other it is to get down things quickly.

is submerged under the sea called learning.

This charge against colleges does not mean that the facts handed out are false. They are not. The danger lies in the attitude in which the students accept these facts. To believe all is not merely a lazy mental habit, but falls just short of being a mental crime. It stagnates the brain, retards progressive thinking and smothers accurate reasoning. It kills initiative.

Is the solution to this problem with the colleges or with the student? It is with the individual student. It is obviously impossible for the professor to regulate the minds of his students. It is not his duty. But if every young person in college would make it his ambition to become an individual—not a parrot—American youth would be placed on a still higher level.—Daily Northwestern.

RADIO CLUB GAVE DEMONSTRATIONS

Youngest Association Has Enthusiastic Meeting

An able address was given by Webster to a representative crowd of radio fans in the Physics Building yesterday at five o'clock, on the subject of the Super-regenerative Armstrong System. Webster explained how two valves could be made to serve the purpose of several valves, although the tuning was somewhat difficult. His whole talk was made all the more interesting and comprehensible by a very thorough and complete display of apparatus to accompany each step in the lecture.

This address was followed by a short talk from Dr. H. T. Bares, the Hon. President, on the subject of the fundamental principles of present day wireless. Considerable enthusiasm was displayed after Dr. Bares finished his address in arguing the different advantages and disadvantages of many of the new improvements which have made their appearance lately in making the radio system of the present day more complete and far-reaching.

After the fans had made sufficient conclusions along these lines, Dr. A. S. Eve addressed them for several minutes concerning the most interesting topic of "Electric Waves." This is altogether a new idea in connection with radio apparatus, although it has been known for some time in the realm of Physics. Dr. Eve made his talk very easy to understand, as well as interesting to those who were making special application of this principle.

Dr. L. V. King then proceeded to enlighten the listeners along the lines of "Radio Direction Finding," and a short talk was given by Mr. Demers of the Northern Electric Co., on the five watt transmittor, toward which he has given so much aid in developing.

FOURTH INFORMAL WILL BE TONIGHT

McGill Dance Orchestra to Play for Event

Another McGill Informal takes place tonight. There have been three since the beginning of the session and each one has been better than the one before. This fact augurs well for the dance tonight.

Judging from the sale of tickets there will be a goodly crowd. This is due no doubt to the present lull after the mid-year exams.

The McGill Dance Orchestra will supply the music and the Union Cafeteria the refreshments, which will be of the same high grade as they have always been in the past.

The chaperones for the occasion will be Miss Smellie and Miss Pickel.

SUNDAY NIGHT SING AT STRATHCONA HALL

There will be the first sing of the new year on Sunday night at 8.45. These have always been most popular in the past and it is hoped they will be equally so in the future. Now that exams are over and there is nothing to worry about on Sunday evening, there should be a full attendance at the sing. Everyone who can play a musical instrument is asked to bring it along.
